

Titanic drama at the impairment test? Count you out!

© BESTBRK/ISTOCK

Triggering Event, suddenly the value contributions of your cash generating units decrease. There is a threat of goodwill depreciation with a profit warning and nobody has had it on the radar before?

Attention Goodwill

Goodwill accounts for an increasingly large part of the balance sheet. As a forward-looking financial captain, you should immediately equip yourself with the necessary tools to recognize the melting of goodwill at an early stage. This is the only way you can correct the course in time to avoid an impairment in the impairment test.

Headwind from port

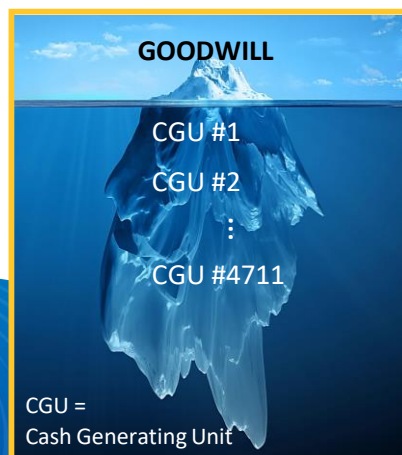

In view of the stricter audit requirements, it is absolutely necessary to audit goodwill on an almost monthly basis. The regulations and your own diligence require that you regularly examine each company. The crux of the matter is that these audits usually require intensive expenditure of time and resources. But this is the only way to avoid shipwreck!
